Welcome to Barcelona

On behalf of the Organising Committee we are pleased to welcome you to the 37th Annual Conference of the International Working Party on Labour Market Segmentation – IWPLMS 2016 in Barcelona.

Set up in 1979, the International Working Party on Labour Market Segmentation is an annual meeting of experts. Each year the IWPLMS discusses papers based on a central theme concerning labour market issues.

The theme of the 37th Annual IWPLMS Conference that will be held in Barcelona is "Work and inequality: The dynamics of growing inequality and the search for responses".

Eight years after the eruption of the global financial crisis, the majority of the world's countries continue to confront serious problems: massive unemployment, low rates of economic growth, debt, deflation, etc. Added to this complicated situation is the threat of a new recession. Problems in the developed countries have affected the developing economies, causing both a slowdown in the export of industrial products from those countries and a collapse in the price of raw materials. And the slowdown of emerging countries comes back to developed economies. The threat of a new recession is occurring when many of the countries affected by adjustment and austerity policies still face enormous social and labour problems. And this is without taking into account the impact of wars and the massive migration of refugees, which in Europe is affecting national politics and causing new social and political tensions.

We hope the conference will contribute to favour a fruitful exchange of views and experiences amongst scholars from different European countries in order to reach a better understanding of the causes and implications of the recent crisis.

This year, IWPLMS conference is organised by the Centre for Sociological Studies of Everyday Life and Work (QUIT) from the Autonomous University of Barcelona. The local organising committee is constituted by researchers with extensive experience in the field

Have a good conference and enjoy your stay in Barcelona.

About Centre d'Estudis Sociològics QUIT

Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona

The Centre for Sociological Studies of Everyday Life and Work (QUIT) was formally established in 1991 within the Department of Sociology at the initiative of the UAB faculty and doctoral students.

As a research centre focused on the Sociology of Work, QUIT covers different topics such as social analysis of time and its influence on the everyday life, changes in work processes, labour-market structure, and industrial relations in the European Union and between dynamics of globalization and localization. In this sense, a profound change is taking place regarding work and employment, and where factors such as internal division of work, migrations and gender inequalities have a key role. For this reason, QUIT study and debate about reconciliation policies between work and family life, the impact of international migration in the Spanish work models, as well as the relationship between employment and local development. In addition, we take into account those cross issues such as gender inequalities and its consequences on work and everyday life.

In 1995, QUIT was appointed as a Research Group by the Catalan Government (Generalitat de Catalunya), and in 2003 received the recognition of Special Research Centre at UAB. Finally, since last April QUIT is also a member of the Institute for Labour Studies, an interdisciplinary project that was conceived by QUIT a couple of years ago, and tries to link research on work with its influences over other social levels, contexts and fields.

A walk through the history of Barcelona

The first human settlements in Barcelona date back to Neolithic times. The city itself was founded by the Romans who set up a colony called Barcino at the end of the 1st century BC. The colony had some thousand inhabitants and was bounded by a defensive wall, the remains of which can still be seen in the old town.

For over 200 years, Barcelona was under Muslim rule, and, following the Christian reconquest, it became a county of the Carolingian Empire and one of the main residences of the court of the Crown of Aragon. The fruitful medieval period established Barcelona's position as the economic and political centre of the Western Mediterranean. The city's Gothic Quarter bears witness to the splendour enjoyed by the city from the 13th to the 15th centuries.

From the 15th to 18th centuries Barcelona entered a period of decline, while it struggled to maintain its economic and political independence. A period of cultural recovery began in the mid-19th century with the arrival of the development of the textile industry.

The 20th century ushered in widespread urban renewal throughout Barcelona city, culminating in its landmark Eixample district, which showcases some of Barcelona's most distinctive Catalan Art-nouveau, or Modernista, buildings. The Catalan Antoni Gaudí, one of the most eminent architects, designed buildings such as the Casa Milà (known as La Pedrera, the Catalan for stone quarry), the Casa Batlló and the Sagrada Família Cathedral, which have become world-famous landmarks.

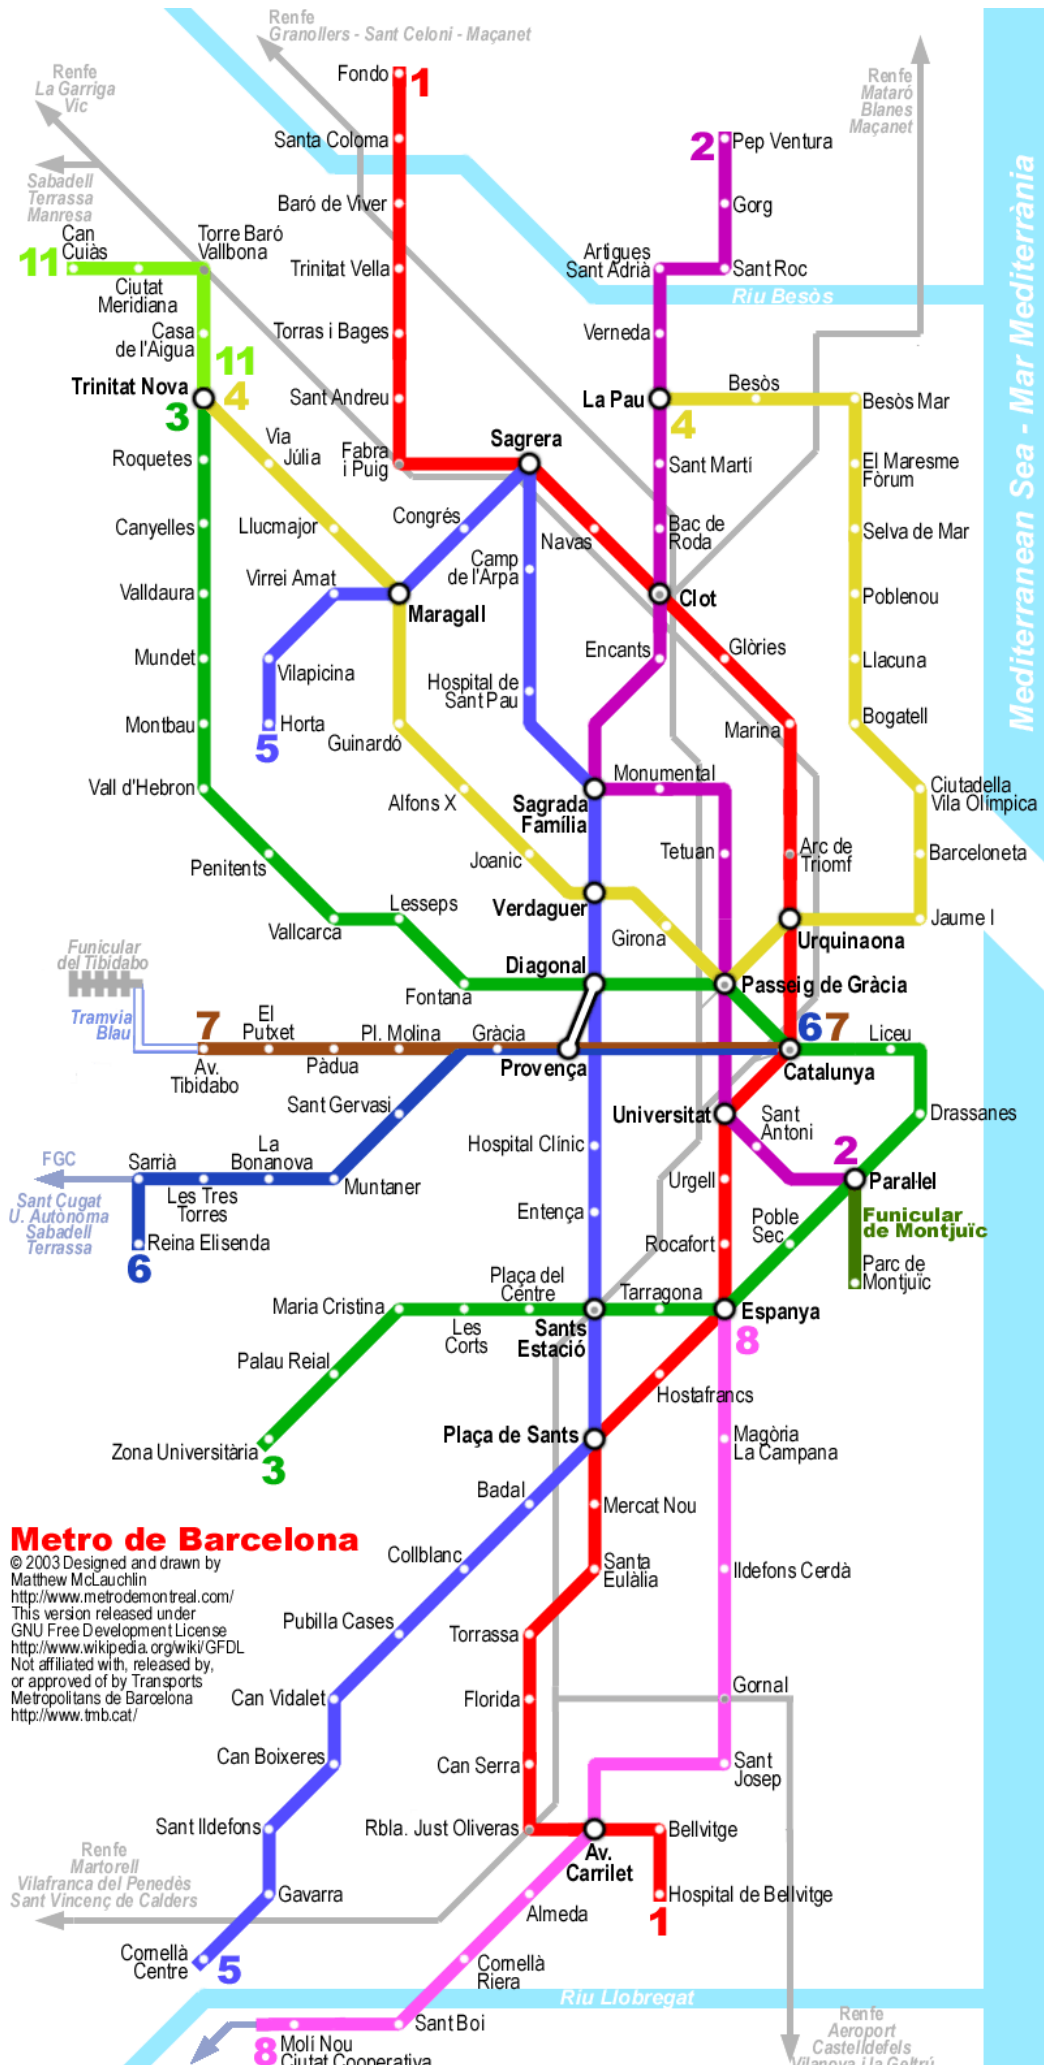

The civil rights achieved during this period were severely restricted during the Civil War in 1936 and the subsequent dictatorship. With the reinstatement of democracy in 1978, Barcelona society regained its economic strength.

The city's hosting of the 1992 Olympic Games gave fresh impetus to Barcelona's potential and reaffirmed its status as a major metropolis.
