BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF SUBJECT

We depart from the assumed knowledge of the students' native language to give them a deeper understanding and ability to make English a suitable instrument of communication.

OBJECTIVES

Based on the parametrised structure of Catalan, Spanish, and English we intend to give the students a deeper knowledge of English through the contrast with their native languages, so that they gain the following abilities: a correct pronunciation of English, a good understanding of the structure of the lexicon, especially of word-formation, and a good knowledge of the English syntactic structures: ability to form their own sentences and to understand those they come across.

SYLLABUS

The following modules will be dealt with during the course:

- Contrastive linguistics. Language learning. Communication strategies and error analysis.
- The alphabetic writing system
- The tables of the sound systems of the three languages. Phonotactics
- Morphology. Word-formation
- Syntactic structures.

ASSESSMENT

The students will be assessed on the following bases:

- A final examination, 60%
- Class attendance and class assignments, 20%
- Article reviews and the Tutoria I , 20%

TUTORIALS

Problem solving. Repair exercises. Review of new concepts.

BIBLIOGRAPHY / MATERIALS

The bibliography of the course, articles for the review, and topics of assignment will be given the first class.
