

Degree	Type	Year	Semester
2500257 Criminology	OB	3	1

Contact

Name: Joan Baucells Lladós
Email: Joan.Baucells@uab.cat

Use of languages

Principal working language: catalan (cat)
Some groups entirely in English: No
Some groups entirely in Catalan: Yes
Some groups entirely in Spanish: No

Teachers

Maria Jesus Guardiola Lago

Prerequisites

There are no prerequisites to enrol in this course, but it is recommended to have passed and have a good level in the subjects of "Criminal law" and "Introduction to law"

Objectives and Contextualisation

The course expects that the student identifies the institutional approach to crime as a complex political decision involving different inputs and interests. Second, the course expects that the student identifies critically principles, motivations, objectives, functions and ideologies behind every criminal political option. Finally, the course expects that the student could locate each policy decision (terrorism, gender violence , drugs, immigration, small patrimonial delinquency, sexual crimes, ...) in any of the criminal policies trends that scientific doctrine has been identified in recent years and their implications.

Content

- Item 1: Approach to the concept of criminal policy.
- Item 2: Relations and differences between criminology, criminal policy and criminal law.
- Item 3. Crisis of criminal welfarism and emergence of new political and criminal tendencies.
- Item 4. Models of contemporary criminal policy (1) risk criminal law.
- Item 5. Models of contemporary criminal policy (2): the criminal law of security.
- Item 6. Models of the contemporary criminal policy (3) criminal law of the enemy.
- Item 7. Models of the contemporary criminal policy (4): Friend's criminal law.
- Item 8. The symbolic use of criminal law.
- Item 9. Punitive populism.
- Item 10. The influence of the media on criminal policy.
- Item 11. The current political discussion criminal in Spain.
- Item 12. Criminal policy on drugs.
- Item 13. Criminal policy of road safety.
- Item 14. Criminal policy of immigration.