Research project on legislative behaviour in the European Parliament

PEULEG is a research project analysing legislative behaviour in the European Parliament by focusing in issues related to legislative participation, representation and oversight. Building on and connecting theoretical debates on EU decision-making and legislative behaviour, the study aims at reaching a better understanding of an under-explored dimension of parliamentary politics in the EU. The research combines quantitative and qualitative techniques and is based on a combination of datasources.

The research is financed by the Spanish Ministry of Economy and Competitiveness, and covers the period 1 January 2016 to 31 December 2018 (CSO2015-6605-P).
