

How to incorporate text and audiovisual resources from others

● Follow these steps

0 Make your own photos, music or designs

(✓) Whenever possible, it is highly recommended because you keep the rights and save yourself from having to resort to the work of others.

1 Use open access content

(✓) Use the "usage rights" filter in Google's advanced search. And if you want to search for images on Google, remember that Google Images allows searching restricted by license. See how to do it

In Creative Commons licenses, the author indicates the permitted uses of his work. More help information at Creative Commons

(✓) Search in the repositories of audiovisual resources on our website Audiovisual Resources for Academic Use

2 If you use protected content...

copyright

(✓) Check if you can take advantage of the RIGHT TO QUOTE or the RIGHT TO ILLUSTRATION IN TEACHING.

More information about these two rights on our website

Intellectual Property and open access

3 If you can't take advantage of the quote or illustration right...

(✓) You need the AUTHOR'S PERMISSION, in writing and for a specific use

* Remember...

ALWAYS state AUTHORITY and SOURCE
