International Open Access Week 2018

From October 22 to 28, the International Open Access Week is celebrated across the world, an annual initiative to promote open access (OA) in the academic and research world. Here you will find the different activities prepared this year by the UAB Libraries to promote open access:

"Open Access publishing" training

During this week there will be three courses on "Open access publishing" supported by the Research Vice-chancellorship and aimed at PhD students and postdoctoral students. Each of the three sessions is available in a different language (Catalan, Spanish and English), on different dates and locations on the campus. You will find all the information about these talks in the registration forms:

IN SPANISH: Monday October 22, 2018, 10-11.30 h

IN CATALAN: Tuesday, October 23, 2018, 17-18.30 h

IN ENGLISH: Thursday October 25, 2018, 16-17.30 h

Wiquimarathon on Cultural Heritage UAB 2018

On October 23 and 24, the UAB organizes a Wikimarathon on Cultural Heritage of the UAB within the framework of the European Year of Cultural Heritage and the 50th anniversary of the UAB. It is an event that aims to disseminate quality content related to cultural heritage related to the UAB within the framework of the vikipedia in Catalan and in the other languages of our environment.

Promotional video on Open Access

The video created by the UAB libraries, together with the Audiovisual and Multimedia Unit of the Communication Department, aims to promote open access. Researchers from all subject areas of research within the university (sciences, medicine, social sciences and humanities), as well as members of the Government team, have participated. Thank you to all participants!
