Note for contributors

Submissions to the journal may be written in any European official language, though English is preferred. They must include an abstract of about 150 words, indicating a short set of key-words. If the paper is not written in English, a translation of the abstract should be added.

The originals must be sent in an electronic format to the editor's email address. Recommended formats are MSword (.doc), or Rich Text Format (.rtf) for PC or Mac. Recommended fonts are TmsNR-11 for the text body, TmsNR-12 for the Title, TmsNR-10 for the bibliography and TmsNR-9 for the foot notes. Examples should be in italics, bold-face types and long foot notes should be avoided as far as possible.

Quotations in the text must indicate only the author's name, year and pages (eg. Wierzbicka 1992: 178); the abbreviation "et al." should be used in the quotations if there are more than two authors, while the complete set of authors will be mentioned in the bibliography. If there are graphic files or uncommon letters, a PDF version must also be sent with the original. As for phonetic transcriptions, the <SIL-Doulos IPA93.ttf> is preferred. Do not use automatic hyphenation.

Originals will be evaluated by two external referees and two members of the editorial board. In case of tie among the reports, the director's vote will break the deadlock. Authors may receive proofs for corrections, which must be returned in the dates stipulated by the editor.

Language Design is an academic annual journal that publishes linguistic original research on relevant aspects of the design of natural languages.

Language Design invites authors to submit manuscripts to the Editor-in-chief at the address given below. Instructions for contributors are available on the inside back cover. The journal is published by Método Ediciones for the Department of General Linguistics of the University of Granada, and the AAALG (Asociación Andaluza de Lingüística General). For further information contact the editor-in-chief or consult the website of the association (<http://ashda.ugr.es/aalg>). Language Design is included in CINDOC-DICE; DIALNET & LATINDEX databases (<http://dice.cindoc.csic.es> <http://www.latindex.org>) and its electronic version is available at http://elies.rediris.es/Language_Design/

Subscription rates per (yearly) volume: 35€ for individuals, 50€ for Institutions/ libraries. A subscription order form can be obtained from the editors on request.
