BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF CONTENT:

Students of literature often find it difficult to place their reading within general concepts or broad definitions. The aim of this course is therefore to remedy that situation by considering the following four questions:

1. What is a Romantic text?
2. What is a realist text?
3. What is a modernist text
4. What is a postmodern text?

The introductory sessions will discuss these issues before students are sent off to the library to prepare the reading pack will make up the material for the rest of the semester.

BIBLIOGRAPHY:

The texts will be available in a reading packet at the start of the semester.

(Texts by authors such as Stendhal, Melville, Stevenson, Kafka, V. Woolf among others)
