BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF CONTENT:

This is the third obligatory literature course which completes the overview of English literature.

SYLLABUS:

The subject is divided into two halves.

First semester:

Study of the main developments in English literature from the late 13th century to the second half of the 16. We'll read and comment some of the most relevant works of the Medieval and early Renaissance periods in England: romances (Perceval, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, English adaptations of Marie de France's Lais); ballads and lyrics (traditional and modern); the great comic epic by Geoffrey Chaucer (the General Prologue, a "fabliau" and another of his Canterbury Tales); mystery plays (The Second Shepherd's Play) and the stage before Shakespeare; forms of women's writing in the late middle ages (Julian de Norwich, Margery Kempe); the new humanistic culture at Henry VIII's courts (Thomas More, Thomas Wyatt); Elizabethan sonneteers (Edmund Spenser, Sir Philip Sidney).

Second semester:

A survey of the main British writers and literary currents of the 17th and 18th centuries. The Shakespearean sonnet, the origins of Elizabethan drama, a Shakespearan play, the metaphysical poets: John Donne, George Herbert, Andrew Marvell; John Milton: Paradise Lost, especially Books IV & IX; 17th century prose: John Bunyan, Samuel Pepys, Mary Astelll; Restoration drama: Congreve, fragments from The Way of the World; Jonathan Swift: Gulliver's Travels, the rise of the novel: fragments from Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe and fragments from Samuel Richardson's Clarissa.

METHOD OF ASSESSMENT:

Class participation: 30% Oral Presentation: 10% Written assignments: 30%
