Prerequisites
A basic knowledge of linguistics is necessary to follow this course.

Objectives and Contextualisation
The aim of this course is to study how learners create new concepts in a second language, and how their lexicon is re-structured by the addition of L2 words and concepts to the ones already present, belonging to L1. This is done from a multidisciplinary perspective, bringing together ideas from theoretical linguistics, cognitive psychology, second language acquisition and bilingualism. The perspective taken is cognitive-pragmatic.

Skills

- Analyse and synthesise information at an advanced level.
- Analyse the relationship between factors, processes or phenomena in the acquisition of English as a second language, its learning and teaching methods, and its literature, history and culture.
- Apply methodological knowledge of statistical analysis and data generation, treatment and codification of multilingual databases, analysis of literary texts, etc. to research.
- Communicate the knowledge acquired and the contributions of ones research correctly, accurately and clearly both orally and in writing.
- Critically argue, issue judgements and present ideas on the basis of the analysis of information originating from scientific production in these areas.
- Develop autonomous learning skills applicable to the research process.
- Distinguish and contrast between the different methodological and theoretical models applied to the academic study of the acquisition, teaching and use of English as a second language in multilingual and multicultural contexts, literary studies and cultural studies.
- Show respect towards the opinions, values, behaviours and/or practices of others.
- Use the English language for academic and professional purposes related to research into the acquisition, teaching and use of English as a second language in multilingual and multicultural contexts, literary studies and cultural studies.
