

Questionnaire Analysis and Adaptation

Code: 43882
ECTS Credits: 6

Degree	Type	Year	Semester
4316222 Research in Clinical Psychology and Health	OT	0	1

Contact

Name: Eduardo Doval Diéguez
Email: Eduardo.Doval@uab.cat

Use of languages

Principal working language: spanish (spa)

Teachers

Eva Penelo Werner

Prerequisites

Objectives and Contextualisation

The objective of this module is for the student to be able to select, adapt or create the measurement instruments

The module begins with the exposition of the concepts of reliability and validity, as the main psychometric proper

In the second part of the module, the knowledge acquired in the first part will be applied to the critical assessmen

Also for the case where it is necessary to elaborate a new instrument of measurement, the adequate methodolog

All sections of the module will work with normative documents or international recommendations.

Content

Block I

Desirable psychometric properties in measuring instruments: Concepts

Evaluation of the psychometric properties of an existing instrument

Adaptation of an existing instrument

Development of a new measuring instrument

Block II

Desirable psychometric properties in measuring instruments: techniques

Norming

Factor Analysis

Differential Item Functioning (DIF) and Invariance

Reliability