Prerequisites

This subject requires a command of oral and written expression in Spanish equivalent to that obtained at the end of bachelor studies. Therefore the ability to express correctly verbally and in writing is essential.

In regards to writing, it's understood that the student will write paragraphs with full content. Obviously, spelling errors, punctuation and speech structure will be taken into account. 0,25 points will be deducted for each error.

Activities, practical sessions and papers submitted in the course must be original and under no circumstances will the total or partial plagiarism of third-party materials published on any medium be admitted.

With regards to the uses of the bibliographic documentation, the student must state the authorship of each quote and the use of third-party materials.

Any submission of non-original material without properly indicating its origin will automatically result in a failure rating (0).

It is also expected that the student knows the general rules of submission of an academic work. However, the student could apply the specific rules that the teacher of the subject may indicate to him, if he deems it necessary.

Objectives and Contextualisation

"Introduction to Spanish Literature II" forms part of the 30 basic training credits of the first year of the Spanish Language and Literature Degree, which the student attends along with other Spanish language subjects and methodology of the study of Spanish Philology. In addition, in that first course the student obtains a further 30 credits of cross-disciplinary basic subjects: Latin, Introduction to linguistics, Comparative Literature, Major Topics in History and Major Topics in Philosophy.

Among the basic training objectives, the student is required to acquire a solid and broad-based knowledge of the stages and the periodization of Spanish literature, the development of the main genres and authors, through careful reading of selected literary texts. On the other hand, students will apply their acquired specific competences in the realization of speeches, both oral and written, related to the area of Spanish literature by using the methods, concepts and literary theories they have acquired.

The subject aims to offer an overview of Spanish literature from the eighteenth century to present. Special attention will be paid to the description and development of the main stages of literature and its literary and aesthetic currents, focusing on the reading and analysis of some of the fundamental texts of those stages, periods, movements or trends.

Methodology

The learning of this subject by the students is distributed as follows:

- Directed activities (35%). These activities are divided into master classes and seminars and classroom practices led by the faculty, in which the theoretical explanation is combined with the discussion of all types of texts.
- Supervised activities (10%). These tutorials are programmed by the teacher, dedicated to correcting and commenting on problems at different levels of literary analysis.
- Autonomous activities (50%). These activities include both time devoted to individual study and possible preparation of reviews, papers and analytical comments written, as well as oral presentations.

- Evaluation activities (5%). The evaluation of the subject can be carried out through oral presentations and written tests.

Assessment

The assessment of the subject will be based on the following activities (the specific weight of each one of them is indicated in brackets in the final note):

1. An exam, which can be done in the form of a final exam at the end of May [50%], or by means of two midterm exams, the first one taking place in March [25%] and the second at the end of May [25%]. The first midterm exam will deal with the first three mandatory readings, while the second midterm exam will deal with the last two mandatory readings. Students who choose to attend the first midterm exam in March will not be able to take the final exam in May.
2. Two text comments, one related to the first part of the subject (Enlightenment and Romanticism) and the other related to the second (Realism, Modernism and Avant-gardes) [20%].
3. A monographic paper on some of the mandatory readings, whose subject will be proposed by the teacher [30%].

The revision of the tests will be done in an interview previously agreed with the teacher.

The student who does not perform any of the activities or tests will be considered "Not evaluated". The preparation of an activity implies the student's will to be evaluated in the subject.

Reassessment

1. The student must attend all the evaluable tests in order to be reassessed.
2. Students who have failed their comments, exams and papers will not be able to be reassessed. To qualify for the reassessment, it will be necessary to have passed one of the three tests.

3. Should the students have attended the two midterm exams, it will be considered that the final grade of their exam is the average of the two midterm scores.

4. Reassessment will be possible only with a score of 3.5 or higher both in the exams and in the monographic work.
