Objectives and Contextualisation

The Public Administration has a fundamental role in everything that has to do with prevention and safety, establishing plans and measures that allow facing in a coordinated and effective way situations of serious collective risk, to guarantee the integrity of the people, material means , infrastructure and the environment.

It is also up to the Public Administrations to protect the free exercise of the rights and freedoms of citizens, as well as to ensure compliance with their obligations, guarantee public safety and peaceful coexistence, within the framework of the general interest.

At the same time, the Public Administration must ensure the safety of the infrastructures, means of transport and other means that it uses and makes available to citizens, as well as the safety and welfare of its employees.

Public employees are responsible for preventing and acting on any threat to safety. Therefore, their effectiveness will depend, not only on the means they have, but on their competencies, organization and direction.

That is why this subject aims to make known to students the legal regime and working conditions of public employees of Public Administrations, dealing with the different instruments that make up a human resources management system, according to the different type of link legal relationship with public administrations, that is, public officials or employees hired.

An approximation will be made to the professional relationship of the public employee, from the selection systems, rights and duties, code of conduct, working conditions, professional promotion and the extinction of the relationship.

The basic Statute of the public employee, from now on EBEP, is the basic norm of all these issues, without prejudice to other regulations of a specific nature.

The management of teams, leadership, and other items related to the management of public employees, will highlight the importance of the new figure of the "Professional Public Manager" regulated for the first time in article 13 of the EBEP.
