Prerequisites

It is taken for granted that students know, at least, the concepts and theories studied in the "Political Science" course of the first year of the Degree. It is also taken for granted that students regularly follow generalist world news press.

Objectives and Contextualisation

This subject is compulsory in the second year of the Degree in Political Science and Public Management. As an annual subject, it aims, on the one hand, to work in depth the main concepts and models that currently dominate the panorama in the analysis of public administration and public policies from a sectoral perspective. On the other hand, it also introduces the constant reference to comparative experience in administration, public management and public policies, with the study of cases in different political and cultural contexts.

Its main objective is that students know these theoretical and empirical references and that they know how to use them in the interpretation of the dynamics of functioning and change in public administrations and policies.

Competences

- Analysing public policies, both in their elaboration and implementation processes.
- Applying the discipline's main theories and different fields to real practical and professional problems.
- Applying the knowledge of the Public Administrations on its various levels to practical and professional concrete cases.

- Arguing from different theoretical perspectives.
- Demonstrating good writing skills in different contexts.
- Demonstrating the understanding of intergovernmental relationships and identifying the position of Public Administrations in the political system.
- Describing and understanding the functioning of the Public Administration on a state, sub-state and supranational level.
- Distinguishing the discipline's main theories and different fields: conceptual developments, theoretical frameworks and theoretical approaches underlying the discipline's knowledge and different areas and sub-areas, as well as their value for the professional practice through concrete cases.
- Identifying sources of data and conducting bibliographic and documentary searches.
- Interpreting and applying English texts in an academic way.
- Managing the available time in order to accomplish the established objectives and fulfil the intended task.
- Producing and planning researches or analytical reports.
- Realising effective oral presentations that are suited to the audience.
- Showing a good capacity for transmitting information, distinguishing key messages for their different recipients.
- Synthesizing and critically analysing information.
- Using different tools for the analysis and explanation of the formulation, decision, implementation and evaluation processes in public policies.
- Using the main information and documentation techniques (ICT) as an essential tool for the analysis.
- Working autonomously.
- Working in teams and networking, particularly in interdisciplinary conditions.

Assessment

The evaluation of this subject will be done after the following deliveries by the student:

- Exams: 50% of the mark (25% each partial). It is a necessary condition but not enough to approve the two partials separately to pass the subject.
- Seminars/Reading controls: 30% of the mark
- Oral presentation of a theme of the program: 20% of the note (group work).

Important considerations:

- To pass an exercise or reading test, you must have attended the corresponding debate.
- To pass the subject, it is a necessary condition but not enough to pass both partial exams. If one of the two exams is suspended, the subject is not approved.
- The dates of the controls will be specified within the framework of the course program (see Virtual Campus).
- There will be a semester exam and a final exam for those who have to recover some of the partial (or both)

Evidence of plagiarism in exercises or exams object of evaluation will involve failing the course.
