Prerequisites

Prerequisites

This subject IS NOT an introduction to the Latin language, but is intended for students who have studied Latin in high school or who have an equivalent knowledge. In addition, the students must have well assimilated the basic contents of nominal and verbal morphosyntax, syntax of the cases and of the sentence and lexicon, which are part of the program of the subject Elements of Latin of the first semester. The student who has difficulty reaching such level could ask the teachers for support materials and help in tutoring sessions, but will have the responsibility to strive to get there.

Language

The student must have the willingness to follow classes taught in Catalan and use written material in that language (without excluding others), but they can use in their work or their participation Spanish (or another similar language if the case is given).

Prerequisites

This subject IS NOT an introduction to the Latin language, but is intended for students who have studied Latin in high school or who have an equivalent knowledge. In addition, the students must have well assimilated the basic contents of nominal and verbal morphosyntax, syntax of the cases and of the sentence and lexicon, which are part of the program of the subject Elements of Latin Language of the first semester. The student who has difficulty reaching such level could ask the teachers for support materials and help in tutoring sessions, but will have the responsibility to strive to get there.

Language

The student must have the willingness to follow classes taught in Catalan and use written material in that language (without excluding others), but they can use in their work or their participation Spanish (or another similar language if the case is given).

Objectives and Contextualisation

This subject is the logical continuation of the subject "Elements of Latin" that most students have taken in the first semester of the first year. Having consolidated the basic grammatical and lexical knowledge in the aforementioned subject, it is time for the students to show that they really know them, through their recognition in texts of medium difficulty. It is also time to get started in philological commentary.

The students, at the end of the semester, must be able to:

- Apply techniques that allow a quick comprehension of the Latin text.
- Translate an approximate amount of 15 lines of a prose text in 1.30h with the help of the dictionary.
- Translate approximately 15 verses of a poetic text in 1.30h with the help of the dictionary.
- Understand the meaning of a Latin text of medium-low difficulty without the help of the dictionary.
- Explain grammatically a text in prose or verse starting from questions proposed by the teacher.
- Know the context, plot and characters of Petronius' Satyricon.

Competences

- Apply grammatical knowledge acquired in the analysis and comprehension of Latin and Greek texts.
- Be able to express oneself orally and in writing in the specific language of history, archaeology and philology, both in one's own languages and a third language.
- Interpret texts written in Latin and Greek to understand the history and Classical civilisations.

Learning Outcomes

1. Analyse the morpho-syntactic components of a Greek and Latin text, identifying those that are internal to the narrative genre.
2. Apply the techniques that help towards a rapid overall understanding of Greek and Latin texts.
3. Explain the context of the literary works whose characters, topics and clichés were passed down to the following tradition.
4. Explain the gist of a text without any need for a prior morpho-syntactic analysis or the use of a dictionary.
5. Extract information from the Greek and Latin texts on aspects of realia especially related to their historical and cultural context.
6. Preparing an oral and written discourse in the corresponding language in a proper and organized way.
7. Translate fragments of the Latin works proposed.

Methodology

The teaching activities will be eminently practical. Teachers will dedicate their time to:

- Having the proposed selection of texts read, translated and commented.
- Providing the students with mechanisms that allow them to progressively increase the volume of translated text.
- Making the students read and understand texts at first sight.
- Correcting the texts translated each day individually by the students.
- Commenting on the linguistic content of translated texts.
- Explaining grammar contents.
- Working on the lexicon of the texts to help the student to learn it.
- Explaining literary, cultural, historical or social contents that help to contextualize the texts.
- Correcting and commenting on assigned morphosyntax and vocabulary activities.

The students will have the responsibility to prepare the text proposed for translation, morphosyntactic activities and the reading of the given day.

Activities

Title	Hours	ECTS	Learning Outcomes
Type: Directed
Theoretical exposition	5	0.2	1
Traanslation and philological commentary of prose and verse texts	50	2	1, 2, 4, 5, 7
Type: Autonomous

Morphosyntactic activities	20	0.8	1
Personal translation	50	2	1, 2, 6, 7
Reading of Petronius' Satyricon	15	0.6	3
Self-study	10	0.4	1

Assessment

The evaluation of the students will be based on the collection of the following evidences:

- Accomplishment of morphosyntactic activities to show that they understand and know how to apply the contents explained in the classes.
- Basic morphology and syntax test.
- Control of the reading of Petronius' Satyricon.
- Active participation in teaching activities. It will be especially valued that the students share their translation or their answers with the group/class
- Two tests consisting in translation (with grammatical analysis) of texts not seen during the course (20% and 40%, respectively, of the final grade). In total the texts will add between 10 and 15 lines / verses.

If the teacher has two or more singular evidences (activities, control of attendance and / or tests), the student will not be able to receive qualification of non-evaluable. Thus, any student who has submitted two or more pieces of evidence will have a grade on the scale from failed up to MH, according to the percentages mentioned.

However, to be able to pass the course, the student must have made at least:

- All the translation tests of texts not seen during the course and have obtained a minimum grade of 4 as the proportional sum of the two (taking into account the value of each).
- The control of the reading of the Satyricon.

Thus, in the event that the sum of the weighting of the grades was 5 or more, but neither of the two requirements mentioned above were met to pass it, the student will have a grade of 4.5 (failed).

In the re-evaluation test, which will be scheduled by the Dean of the Faculty, only the corresponding translation tests and the reading control can be re-evaluated, i.e. 70% of the final grade.

The test schedule is as follows (unless it has to be changed for some reason of force majeure):

- Basic morphology test (nouns, adjectives, pronouns and conjugations): first half of March
- First translation test: second half of March
- Control of reading of Petronius' Satyricon: end of April.
- Second translation test: early June.

In the event that the student is unable to attend a partial test or the final re-evaluation test on the set day, he / she will not have the opportunity to repeat the exam, unless the teacher deems it appropriate in view of the documentation accrediting the reason for the absence.

In the event of a student committing any irregularity that may lead to a significant variation in the grade awarded to an assessment activity, the student will be given a zero for this activity, regardless of any disciplinary process that may take place. In the event of several irregularities in assessment activities of the same subject, the student will be given a zero as the final grade for this subject.

In the event that tests or exams and the activities and participation in class cannot take place onsite, they will be adapted to an online format made available through the UAB's virtual tools (original weighting will be maintained). Lecturers will ensure that students are able to access these virtual tools, or will offer them feasible alternatives.

The student will have the right to a revision of the tests and other activities of evaluation, that will happen in an individualized way with the professor in the date and schedule that this establishes and that will communicate to the students.
