Objectives and Contextualisation

The subject is intended as an introduction, with the aim of familiarizing the student with the vocabulary and the fundamental concepts of Theory and thought in art. During the course, the main issues or problems in the environment of the artistic event that artists, theorists, philosophers or art critics have considered will be analyzed.

The general objective of the subject is that the student knows the intersection between art and thought and, specifically, the ability of art to be an ideal place for it, as well as the transitivity between theory and practice of art.

The subject is configured in a strong correlation with artistic practice.

The specific objectives of the subject are:

1. Elaboration of an argumentary and a vocabulary to understand and explain art as an ideal place for thinking
2. Understanding art as a category and becoming familiar with the historical processes that have led to its formation
3. Know the main theoretical lines of art analysis today
4. Distinguish between creativity, artisticity and art
5. Make a mental map of the agents that plays in the artistic act
6. Recognize the artist as a historical construction in relation to the configuration of the modern individual
7. Learning to analyze artistic productions in relation to their context and theory
8. The awareness of history as a story and start working with tools for storytelling

14. Using the knowledge of general Art Theory in the criticism of the artistic imagery.
15. Working in teams, respecting the other's points of view and designing collaboration strategies.

Content

The contents of the course focus on a triple sense:

- understanding art as a historical construction
- understand its relationship with thought and its contemporaneity
- and recognize the constitutive elements of artistic production.

In this sense, in addition to reviewing the main artistic theories of today, the course is proposed as an art theory workshop, as a space for discussion in order to understand the complexity of artistic production from a situated thought: It will analyze artistic production from contemporaneity, gender, political, ideological conditions and the globalized context. In such a way that it is possible to delve into issues such as the relationship between art and creativity, the formation of the art institution and its different agents, the analysis of the artistic object or the political condition of the artist.

Thus, the subject will plan various topics in which case studies will be introduced and, vice versa, it will start from various case studies to develop art theory.

- The notion of art and creativity: Josep Beuys, relational art ...
- The formation of the art institution and its agents: from the salons to the white cube to transdisciplinary
- The Artist's Invention: What is an Author? What is an artist?
- Changes in the artistic object and in the art production system: from photography to installation through ready-made.
- Modernity and postmodernity: from illustration to globalization.
- The relationship between art and concept or art and thought: conceptual art as an epitome.
- The limits of art: performance, activism, happenings, theatricality, hybridization ...
- Commitment, ideology and art: from the Paris Commune to countercultural movements.
- Art and gender: the revision of the history of art as a heteropatriarchal scheme.

Methodology

Autonomous activities are basically formed by reading and working on the evaluable texts.

The directed activities consist of master classes with a high incentive to participation, as well as visits to museums and art centers recommended at the beginning of the course and in the attempt that the discursive practice accompanies an artistic praxis according to the procedures of applied aesthetics.

The supervised activities are formed by the contributions to the seminars, the contributions to the written tests, as well as the public presentation of the projects of the students

Annotation: Within the schedule set by the centre or degree programme, 15 minutes of one class will be reserved for students to evaluate their lecturers and their courses or modules through questionnaires.

Assessment

The evaluation is based in the contribution of the student in the dynamics of discussion of the subject and his contributions. It also proposes two evaluable exercises: the public presentation of a research paper; and a final written test.

The student's grade will be "not evaluable" when it has not been submitted to the totality of the tests either on the day indicated on the calendar or on the day of the re-evaluation. Even so, in order to have a re-evaluation option, he must have submitted a minimum of one of the two mandatory jobs and in no case must the grade be less than 3.5
