Prerequisites

Since the students have duly given evidence of having acquired the basic competences of the subject, they will need to be able to express properly their ideas both in oral and in written form. Spelling mistakes will be marked down. Coursework will have to be original work and plagiarism either partial or total will be penalised with a failure (0) in the final assessment. The students are expected to be acquainted with the basic rules of academic language and presentation, and also follow the instructions and conventions indicated by the teacher.

Objectives and Contextualisation

The fundamental objectives of the subject are to introduce students to a theoretical reflection on the nature, forms and interpretation of the lyric poetry genre, while providing them with a series of operational concepts for discussion and analysis and, finally, to train them in the application of these theoretical tools by the reading and commentary of all kinds of poetic texts, regardless of their affiliation to one or another national literary tradition.

Competences

English Studies

- Students can apply the knowledge to their own work or vocation in a professional manner and have the powers generally demonstrated by preparing and defending arguments and solving problems within their area of study.
- Students have the ability to gather and interpret relevant data (normally within their study area) to issue judgments that include reflection on important issues of social, scientific or ethical.
- Students must be capable of communicating information, ideas, problems and solutions to both specialised and non-specialised audiences.
- Students must develop the necessary learning skills in order to undertake further training with a high degree of autonomy.

Spanish Language and Literature

- Applying the fundamental theoretical concepts to the comprehension of the narrative, poetic and dramatic texts from a gender perspective.
- Commenting on literary texts, applying the acquired tools and taking into account the historical and sociocultural context.
- Identifying the main epistemological problems related to the nature and structure of narration as a type and genre of texts.
- Interpreting the thematic and symbolic content of the narrative, poetic and dramatic texts according to the textual and pragmatic strategies, following the main methodologies of analysis.
- Relating the methods and results of the literary analysis to the literature as a system and the social sciences, and being capable of interpreting the interlocking of literary texts with other aspects of the human (individual and collective) activity.
- Students must be capable of applying their knowledge to their work or vocation in a professional way and they should have building arguments and problem resolution skills within their area of study.
- Students must be capable of collecting and interpreting relevant data (usually within their area of study) in order to make statements that reflect social, scientific or ethical relevant issues.

Assessment

The evaluation of the course will be carried out primarily through two final tests: there will be (1) a theoretical exam with a proportional value of 40% of the final grade and (2) a practical exam (commentary of text) with the value of another 40%. The remaining 20% will correspond to two written exercises that students will have been requested to submit during the course. Finally, and optionally, it will be possible to make a written monograph, whose maximum score is one point, to be delivered once the course sessions are over and whose approach, after agreement with the person in charge of teaching the subject, should take as a starting point some of the topics of the program. The revision of the exercises will take place in the teacher's office, after convening a date and time. Only students who have previously submitted the two final exams will have the right to be re-assessed in the subject. The student who does not hand in any of the two exercises will be considered "Not presented". Students who have carried out the two written exercises without taking either of the two final examinations will be considered "Not evaluable".

In the event of a student committing any irregularity that may lead to a significant variation in the grade awarded to an assessment activity, the student will be given a zero for this activity, regardless of any disciplinary process that may take place. In the event of several irregularities in assessment activities of the same subject, the student will be given a zero as the final grade for this subject.

In the event that tests or exams (or their revision) cannot be taken onsite, they will be adapted to an online format made available through the UAB's virtual tools (original weighting will be maintained). Homework, activities and class participation will be carried out through forums, wikis and/or discussion on Teams, etc. Lecturers will ensure that students are able to access these virtual tools, or will offer them feasible alternatives.
