Methodology

The teaching methodology combines, on the one hand, the lectures given by the teacher in the lectures, where students are expected to participate in the debates that will take place in the classroom; and on the other, workshops that will require a more active and protagonist participation from the students, since they will consist of the realization of presentations of readings, debates around the same and the realization of practical exercises related to the development of the group work.

Teachers will also allocate approximately 15 minutes of some classes to allow their students to answer surveys regarding the evaluation of teaching performance and the evaluation of the subject or module.

Annotation: Within the schedule set by the centre or degree programme, 15 minutes of one class will be reserved for students to evaluate their lecturers and their courses or modules through questionnaires.

Assessment

The final grade of the course will be the result of combining several types of exercises:

- A final exam (50% of the final grade)
- A group project (30% of the final grade)
- Attendance and participation in workshops (20% of the final grade)

Guidelines for group projects will be given in those workshops.

To pass the subject, you must obtain a score of 5 or higher in the final exam. The final grade will be the arithmetic average score between the exam and the other two indicators, according to the percentages indicated.

The subject requires regular attendance at theoretical and practical classes, as well as the continued work of the student.

Students must attend at least 80% of the classes (excluding excused absences) in order to be assessed. Absences can only be justified for reasons of illness, force majeure and other academic reasons previously authorized by the teaching staff.

Resit: both the exam and the group work can be object of resit, through individual exercises, on the dates established in the academic calendar.

Copying or attempting to copy the exam will result in failing with a zero, as well as loss of the right to any recovery. The indications of plagiarism in the practices or that cannot be justified with reasonable arguments will fail the subject with a zero and the loss of the right to resit.

Classes start on time. Students must be punctual.
