Prerequisites

- A B2 level of English of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages is required, although no specific test of English proficiency level is held to access the degree.

Objectives and Contextualisation

In this subject, students will have the opportunity to learn about and analyze European history from 1945 to the present. The subject covers fundamental historical events, as well as social and cultural relations, including the gender perspective, between the countries of the continent. It includes lectures, reading historical texts, learning to research historical knowledge, writing reviews, and drafting analytical papers. All activity deadlines are indicated in the subject's schedule and must be strictly adhered to.

Competences

- Assess the social, economic and environmental impact when acting in this field of knowledge.
- Distinguish between and analyse the type of relations that have been established over the last century among the different social, political and economic agents on national, regional and international frameworks.
- Distinguish between governmental decision-making systems in different social and political contexts from the mid-twentieth century to the present day in state-, substate and suprastate frameworks.
- Explain and summarise knowledge acquired in English language at an advanced level.
- Identify the role in the present of the different social memories referring to conflictive pasts, differentiating between the concepts of history and memory.
- Manage and apply data to solve problems.
- Recognise and contextualise texts referring to recent contemporary history.
- Students must be capable of communicating information, ideas, problems and solutions to both specialised and non-specialised audiences.

- Students must develop the necessary learning skills to undertake further training with a high degree of autonomy.
- Work cooperatively in multidisciplinary and multicultural teams implementing new projects.

Assessment

Oral presentation - 10%

This part of the evaluation will consist of a presentation of one of the compulsory reading texts for the session. The presentation will have a maximum duration of 15 minutes and should include a Powerpoint in order to present additional graphic material and delve into one or more aspects of the subject matter.

Individual paper - 40%

With individual written work, students will obtain the possibility of researching a specific topic of their own interest, which should be part of the subject. The paper will have an extension of approximately 8 pages (TNR; 1.5 spacing) and should include a basic outline of the contents and a bibliography researched by the students.

Written tests - 50%

There will be two written tests, each of them worth 25% of the final grade. In the written tests, students will have to answer a series of questions to demonstrate their ability to explain and contextualize historical topics and give their qualified opinion on past events.

Related matters

The information on assessment activities and their weighting is merely a guide. The subject's lecturer will provide full information when teaching begins.

Review

When publishing final grades, prior to recording them on students' transcripts, the lecturer will provide written notification of a date and time for reviewing assessment activities. Students will be able to arrange reviewing with the lecturer.

Missed/failed assessment activities

Students may compensate for assessment activities they have failed or missed, provided that those they have actually performed account for 66.6% (two thirds) of the subject's final mark, and that they have a weighted average grade of at least 3.5. The make-up exam will consist of a written test and will be held on the dates set by the Faculty. In no case can the make-up exam be considered as a means of improving the qualification of students who have already passed the subject in the normal process of continuous assessment. In any case, the maximum grade that can be obtained in the make-up exam is 5.0.

Classification as "non-assessable"

If students' performance in assessment activities accounts for only 30% or less of the subject's final grade, their work will be classified as "non-assessable" on their transcript.

Misconduct in assessment activities

Students who engage in misconduct (plagiarism, copying, personation, etc.) in an assessment activity will receive a "0" as a grade for this activity. In the case of misconduct in more than one assessment activity, the students involved will be given a final grade of "0" for the subject. Students may not retake assessment activities in which they are found to have engaged in misconduct. Plagiarism is understood as presenting all or part of an author's work, whether published in print or in digital format, as one's own, i. e. without citing it. Copying is understood as reproducing all or a substantial part of another student's work. If it is impossible to determine who of two students has copied the work of the other, both will be penalized.
