Prerequisites

To follow this course it is necessary to have graduate level knowledge of public and administrative institutions and comparative politics.

Objectives and Contextualisation

Objectives of the course

1. Understand the main theoretical and methodological models of the analysis and management of public policies.

2. Learn how these theoretical and methodological models are applied to carry out research in this field.
3. Understand the forms of applicability of this knowledge in the analysis and approach of complex social and political problems.
4. Acquire the knowledge and skills necessary to apply this knowledge in organizational environments in the field of politics and management.

Competences

- Address complex public intervention situations, possibly involving ethical dilemmas, on the basis of proposals founded both on explicit values and on conceptual and methodological rigour.
- Analyse public policies in different sectorial areas.
- Apply concepts, theories and models from various disciplines in the exercise of public administration duties.
- Continue the learning process, to a large extent autonomously
- Design and evaluate processes of public intervention in specific social, political and sectorial situations and problem areas.
- Identify, understand and analyse complex social and political phenomena that are important to the exercise of public administration duties.
- Lead projects within inter-organisational environments, with different levels and different political and administrative contexts.
- Propose innovative solutions to solve social and political problems.
- Use acquired knowledge as a basis for originality in the application of ideas, often in a research context.

Learning Outcomes

1. Address complex public intervention situations, possibly involving ethical dilemmas, on the basis of proposals founded both on explicit values and on conceptual and methodological rigour.
2. Analyse public policies independently of their sectorial specialisation.
3. Analyse the processes of preparation, implementation and evaluation of public policies
4. Apply models cycle analysis of public policies to real cases.
5. Construct suitable for design analysis empirical cases theoretical models.
6. Continue the learning process, to a large extent autonomously.
7. Design instruments to evaluate a particular public policy.
8. Distinguish the actors involved in processes of policy generation and preparation, focusing especially, not only on their own complexity but also on that of the networks in which they interact.
9. Foresee the possible consequences of the design of a particular public policy.
10. Identify the factors and variables that can affect the definition and results of a public policy.
11. Identify the importance of specific political contexts when designing a policy.
12. Identify the various important actors involved in policymaking, their repertoires of action, interests and resources.
13. Know the design and workings of political and administrative institutions and their link to the processes of multilevel and networked governance.
14. Lead projects within inter-organisational environments, with different levels and different political and administrative contexts.
15. Propose innovative solutions to solve social and political problems.
16. Use acquired knowledge as a basis for originality in the application of ideas, often in a research context.

Topics and sessions

El temari s'estructura en sessions al voltant de diverses preguntes. El procés d'aprenentatge té per objectiu acabar cada tema havent donat resposta a aquestes preguntes a partir de l'ús de la teoria i el contrast de les seves interpretacions. Les respostes derivaran d'haver llegit les lectures que es recomanaran (veure apartats de metodologia docent i de bibliografia), d'haver escoltat les exposicions dels professors/es, d'haver debatut tots aquests continguts, i d'haver-los aplicat a estudis de cas i experiències in situ.

Raquel Gallego: Public policy and public management.

Questions (I): Actors, Problems and Agendas.

1. What is a problem? What type of issues become problems?

2. Define a problem and analyse how and why it is (or not) included on the institutional agenda. Use the theoretical model that is most adequate.

3. What is the role of actors' networks in the policy cycle?

4. How can we explain stability and change in public policies?

Questions (II): Implementation and management tools

1. What are the success and failure factors of implementation? Analyse and example.

Evaluation

A partir d'un treball de cas fet a classe, presentar un breu treball en grup. Les instruccions es donaran durant el transcurs del cas

NO cal portar els textos llegits.

Roger Soler-i-Martí: Youth policies: The challenge of cross-sectoral policies.

Malgrat que les polítiques de joventut acostumen a tenir una posició perifèrica en les estructures i prioritats governamentals, necessiten tenir incidència sobre algunes de les anomenades hard social policies (com educació, treball o habitatge) per aconseguir els objectius que sovint es proposen. Per això, en el cas de les polítiques de joventut, la governança relacional (la interdepartamentalitat i la interinstitucionalitat) són una repte ineludible. A la sessió es presentarà la naturalesa de les polítiques de joventut en perspectiva comparada, i s'analitzaran les estratègies de transversalitat i els resultats obtinguts pel cas de Catalunya.

Contents:

- Joventut, transicions, identitat i desigualtats
- El rol de les polítiques de joventut en perspectiva comparada
- El repte de la incidència de les polítiques de joventut. Transversalitat i govern multinivell
- Planificació estratègica i governança relacional: el cas del Pla Nacional de la Joventut de Catalunya

Ismael Blanco i Ricard Gomà: Urban policies, municipalism and local governments

Aims:

Analitzarem el paper de les polítiques públiques urbanes en les dinàmiques de transformació social, econòmica i mediambiental en el context de la globalització. Definirem les polítiques urbanes com a polítiques multinivell, multidimensionals i basades en interaccions creuades entre actors públics, privats i comunitaris. Identificarem els components principals de la "nova agenda urbana" a les que les polítiques urbanes han de fer front. Discutirem els espais específics dels governs locals en el marc de les polítiques urbanes i el paper del nou municipalisme. Posarem l'accent en dos àmbits de política pública urbana com a àmbits en els quals fer aterrarr totes les reflexions assenyalades: les polítiques de transformació de barris i les polítiques socials de proximitat.

Questions

Quina importància hem de donar a les ciutats i a les polítiques urbanes en un món globalitzat?

Quin pes específic tenen els governs locals en aquest context i quin paper pot jugar el (nou) municipalisme?

Quin paper té l'espai urbà en la reproducció de les desigualtats socials i quina incidència hi poden tenir les polítiques de transformació de barris?

Quina importància tenen avui les polítiques socials de proximitat i quins són els seus principals reptes?

Evaluation

L'avaluació consistirà en la redacció d'un únic assaig a l'entorn de qüestions que reflectiran el que s'ha tractat a les dues sessions.

Methodology

Learning method

Learning is based on the revision, questioning and constant construction of theoretical and practical knowledge. The objective of learning is to acquire the ability to generate questions and give answers - always provisional. To achieve this, it is essential that the student take an active role in the autonomous approach to information, reading and reflecting in order to establish an informed and enriching dialogue with the teacher.

We base learning on the integration of theory and practice:

- We work on the added value of theory both when interpreting reality and acting on it.
- We seek the usefulness of theory to rethink and modify practice: theory allows us to learn from practice.
- We investigate how the analysis of the practice allows us to rethink the theory.
- We concentrate theoretical teaching in the first quarter, and connect them with real experiences (in situ).

In this module, prior autonomous work will be required, through reading and preparation of short papers, for each topic. This work will be complemented with discussions in seminars and with the preparation and presentation of oral presentations, which will help to better sedimentation of knowledge and the ability to rethink them.

The time dedicated to learning is structured from the combination of in-class taught sessions and autonomous homework by the student: 25 hours of student work by ECTS credit (total of 250 hours), of which 20% (50 hours) will be in-class taught classes, 30% (75 hours) will be semi-autonomous and oriented by the lecturer, and 50% (125 hours) will be autonomous student work.

The in-class learning led by the lecturer will be based on the combination of lectures and discussion seminars on both the theoretical aspects and the application of these case studies. The semi-autonomous learning led by the lecturer will be based on the timely tutoring of short assignments and the preparation of oral presentations.

Annotation: Within the schedule set by the centre or degree programme, 15 minutes of one class will be reserved for students to evaluate their lecturers and their courses or modules through questionnaires.

Assessment

Evaluation method

The evaluation will be continuous and will be based on the demonstration of the competences reached by the student in the course of the following activities and corresponding products:

1. Preparation of exercises or short work for each session, indicated by each lecturer (40% of the grade)
2. Participation in seminar sessions and case discussions (10% of the grade)
3. Individual exam done at home within 48 hours (50% of the grade).

It is necessary to elaborate the exercises that each lecturer indicates for each session.
