Teachers

Arnau Gonzalez Vilalta

Prerequisites

Knowledge of universal contemporary history, and contemporary history of Spain and Catalonia acquired at bachelor's degree.

Objectives and Contextualisation

This subject will address the main idiosyncrasies of the construction process of Catalonia in the last third of the 19th century and the first half of the 20th century, through the analysis of the new established and consolidated economic, social, political and cultural models. between 1868 and 1939. In this sense, its axis goes through the explanation and analysis of the different movements that have marked the transformation and contradictions of Catalan society with the aim of understanding the multiple existing internal conflicts. In this sense, three will be the currents that will lead this period: republicanism, workerism and Catalanism. The interaction between these and the political, social and cultural dynamics will build a strongly convulsive historical framework that will allow us to delve into the great underlying axes that have marked contemporary Catalonia, making it especially relevant in the evolution of the history of Spain and incorporating it into its general European context as one more actor.

Assessment

The subject will be evaluated applying the following criteria:

- Written exam tests on the content of the temary: 60%
- Carrying out works, reviews of books read, analytical comments on texts and other images or documents proposed (40%)

The grade of the subject will be established from the average obtained in the written tests (60%) and the rest of the exercises (the remaining 40%). Failure to present these other exercises will prevent you from attending the exams and, therefore, passing the subject.

Students who, in the overall assessment of the subject, have obtained a grade lower than 5 but equal to or greater than 3 may take a recovery exam.

Those students who, for reasons of force majeure, cannot continue the continuous evaluation will be obliged to present themselves to the exams, as well as to reinforce the contents with complementary activities to be specified by the teacher. In this case, it will be necessary to document your absence from the face-to-face sessions.

Plagiarism of written sources (Internet, books, papers, etc.) will be 0 in the exercise grade.

Students will have the right to review the results of the tests performed on the dates and times established by the teacher.

Single Assessment

People who take the single assessment will have to take the same written tests and assignments that will be required for the continuous assessment and these will have the same percentage weight as those of the continuous assessment. They can perform or present the tests and assignments in a single day. The subject will be evaluated applying the same criteria that we have described for continuous evaluation.
