Objectives and Contextualisation

Constitutional Law II is a subject being taught in the first half of 2nd year in the Degree of Law. It's a subject used for students to learn basic notions about the framework of fundamental rights in the Spanish Constitution of 1978. This subject is helpful as introduction to other topics being later developed in several subjects of the Constitutional Law area as well as in other areas being taught at the Degree in Law.

From a perspective of formative education, Constitutional Law II aims to further several goals, specially among them:

- The constitutional system of fundamental rights. Rights and duties. Setting elements of rights.
- Guarantees and defence mechanisms of rights. Limits and suspension of rights.
- Rights of personal autonomy. Participative rights. Social, Economic and Cultural rights.

Competences

- Defending and promoting the essential values of the social and democratic State of Law.
- Efficiently managing information, being capable of assimilating a considerable volume of data in a limited amount of time.
- Identifying the underlying conflicts of interest in disputes and real cases.
- Managing bibliographic and documentary resources: databases, browsing, etc.
- Use different information and communication technologies.
- Using the main constitutional principles and values as a working tool in the interpretation of the legal system.

Learning Outcomes

1. Analysing and assessing in a legal-constitutional way several current problems of society.
2. Assessing the diversity and plurality of society.
3. Defining the different mechanisms of defence and guarantee of rights.
4. Efficiently managing information, being capable of assimilating a considerable volume of data in a limited amount of time.

5. Establishing that those current social problems do not only have one valid solution, but that there might be other democratically and constitutionally valid solutions.
6. Establishing the cases where it might be a suspension of rights, both in exceptional and individual assumptions of suspension of rights.
7. Identifying the different procedural mechanisms for the protection and guarantee of rights.
8. Knowing different constitutionally valid methods and paths in order to find a way out for the different current problems of society.
9. Knowing in depth the constitution configuration of certain important rights nowadays, such as liberty and personal security, inviolability of the home, secrecy of communications, honour, intimacy and personal image, freedom of speech, right to effective judicial protection and procedural safeguards...
10. Knowing that rights are not unlimited and as such, knowing the legitimate and constitutional sources of limits to the rights.
11. Knowing the legitimating role of the fundamental rights in the system, in every democratic society, and also that the acknowledgement, guarantee and efficacy of the fundamental rights constitute the material element of the democratic system.
12. Knowing the regulatory, objective and institutional nature of rights, their configurational elements, the limits to the rights and their possible suspension, as well as their defence and guarantee mechanisms.
13. Managing bibliographic and documentary resources: databases, browsing, etc.
14. Understanding that the several current problems of society must be addressed from tolerance and respect for diversity, fundamental rights and free development of the personality, which are characteristic of a Social and Democratic State of Law.
15. Understanding the insufficiency of formal elements to provide a system the status of democratic.
16. Understanding the need for efficiency of the fundamental rights, their mere statement not being enough.
17. Understanding the risks towards rights that might arise from the new technologies.
18. Use different information and communication technologies.

Methodology

The learning process focuses on the work of the student, who learns working individually and in groups, the mission of the teaching staff being to help him in this task by providing information and showing him the techniques and sources where it can be obtained. The development of teaching of the subject and student training is based on the following activities:

1. Directed activities:

1.1. Theoretical class: where the student acquires through the transmission of knowledge from the professor the conceptual bases of the subject and establishes the doctrinal, normative and jurisprudential legal framework.

1.2. Seminar: they will occupy the assigned hours. The student individually or in small groups, analyzes and solves, together with the professor, questions, practical cases or news related to the topic just developed in the theoretical class. Attendance at the seminars, except if there is just cause, is mandatory.

1.3 Assessment.

2. Supervised activities: tutorials

3. Autonomous activities: these are activities in which students organize their time and effort independently, either individually or in groups.

3.1 Study of the subject.

3.2 Reading of documents that will be analyzed in the classroom.

3.3 Search of bibliography, jurisprudence and materials for the resolution of practical cases.

Annotation: Within the schedule set by the centre or degree programme, 15 minutes of one class will be reserved for students to evaluate their lecturers and their courses or modules through questionnaires.

Assessment

Continuous evaluation:

- Final theoretical exam to be carried out on the date officially indicated by the academic secretary. You will receive 50% of the note. The teaching team corresponding to each of the groups will indicate the format of this exam.

- A minimum of two other evaluation activities with a total weight in the mark of 50% and with the following percentages:

- evaluation activities 25 % (e.g., non-releaseable midterm, case studies or seminar activities)
- evaluation activities 25% (e.g. reviews, book reviews, research papers, scheme of case law or rules, reports and opinions, or active and quality participation).

The list of these possible activities will be specified by each teaching team at the beginning of the course and on the Virtual Campus. The selected activities may be carried out individually or in groups, depending on what the teaching team decides

The teaching team of each group, at the beginning of the course, will specify the framework program of the subject provided in this guide, explaining the order and the topics to be discussed. It will also present the schedule of teaching activities (theory and seminars), specify the continuous evaluation system that has been selected and set the percentage assigned to each of the selected activities and their date of completion, as well as the re-evaluation system for suspended activities . Such indications will be displayed on the virtual campus.

The teaching team of each group may establish that, in order to pass the subject, the student body must achieve a minimum grade in the final group test. In this case, if this minimum grade is not reached, the course will be suspended. The re-evaluation can only take place if the student has followed the continuous assessment.

Unique evaluation:

The teaching team of each group will establish the system and the unique evaluation activities that will be applicable to the student body that has requested and has been granted this system. Students who have taken the unique evaluation will only be entitled to reevaluation if they have obtained a grade equal to or greater than 3.5 points out of 10.

The teaching team of each group will establish the unique evaluation system and activities that will be applicable to students who have requested and have been granted this unique evaluation system. This unique assessment will consist of three parts and aims to enable students to accredit that they have achieved the objectives and learning outcomes, skills and competences established for the subject. The first part will consist of a test or exam of the whole subject with similar characteristics to the one taken in the final exam of the continuous evaluation, which will have a weight of 50% of the mark. The second part will refer to what has been done in the seminars and practicals with a weight of 25% of the final mark, while the third part will focus on one or more of the activities carried out in accordance with the list mentioned above with a weight of the remaining 25%.

This unique evaluation will have, as a whole, a degree of difficulty similar to that required in the continuous evaluation.

As in the continuous assessment, the teaching team of each group may establish that, in order to pass the subject, students opting for the unique evaluation must obtain a mark equal to or higher than 4 in the final overall test or exam, regardless of the marks obtained in the other parts of the assessment.

In any case, specific indications on the unique evaluation and reevaluation will also be given at the beginning of the course and will be posted on the virtual campus of the subject of each group.

The student who copies or attempts to copy on a final exam will have a 0 on the exam. A student who presents a practice in which there is plagiarism will obtain a 0 and receive a warning. In case of repetition of the behavior, the student will suspend the subject.
