Prerequisites

It would be desirable to have a minimum level of C1 to register for this module.

Objectives and Contextualisation

This subject is aimed at future teachers of English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) so that they may become familiar with basic teaching strategies for teaching English to teenagers and adults in institutional contexts and acquire basic knowledge and skills to help them continue to improve as teachers of English throughout their professional lives. These goals are based on the following learning objectives:

- To become familiar with the basics of the sociolinguistic principles of learning foreign languages in institutional environments, supported by research in the field.
- To become familiar with the recommendations of the CEFR
- To develop strategies for teaching foreign languages that are coherent with current research about language learning, student needs and the learning context.
- To become familiar with written academic texts.
- To use advanced linguistic and discursive knowledge to write, adapt and edit oral and written texts adapted to students' needs.

Students taking this subject are reminded that on completing all course requirements they are eligible to be English teachers, meaning that they need to be strong language models for students. Students who enrol in this subject are expected to be able to express themselves fluently, accurately and appropriately in English - in terms of grammar, vocabulary and pronunciation - in everyday situations and in all situations related to the teaching profession (debates, reports, oral presentations, classroom management, etc.). They should also be able to read and comprehend informative, literary and professional texts without difficulty.

This Master's Degree is aligned with European policies and guidelines promoting plurilingual competences. For this reason, it is expected that students display a receptive, appreciative and open attitude to the use of languages other than English in this course, whether known to the student or otherwise.

IMPORTANT:

- Copying or plagiarism, both in the case of graded work and of examinations, constitutes a crime that may result in failing the course. An assignment, activity or exam is considered to be "copied" when it reproduces all or part of the work of a peer. An assignment or activity is considered to be "plagiarised" when part of an author's text is presented as one's own without citing the sources, regardless of whether the original sources are on paper or in digital format. (more information on plagiarism at http://wuster.uab.es/web_argumenta_obert/unit_20/sot_2_01.html). Irregularities refer, for instance, to copying in an exam, copying from sources without indicating authorship, or a misuse of AI such as presenting work as original that has been generated by an AI tool or programme.
