Objectives and Contextualisation

The general objective of this module is twofold. The aim is, on the one hand, to progressively train the student in the translation, grammatical analysis and cultural interpretation of Middle Egyptian literary and funerary texts in hieroglyphic and hieratic script; and on the other hand, to introduce him/her to the literature of ancient Egypt and its main works, read in translation. These are the contents and activities to be worked on:

- 1) Translate, analyze and interpret passages of Middle-Egyptian literary texts of low-medium difficulty in hieroglyphic and hieratic script.
- 2) Translate, analyze and interpret passages of Middle-Egyptian literary and funerary texts of medium-high difficulty in hieroglyphic and hieratic script.
- 3) Know the history of Egyptian literature from the Old Kingdom to the Greco-Roman period, its genres, and its most important creations, which will be read in translation and commented.

Competences

- Act in a creative and original way with solidarity and spirit of scientific collaboration.
- Assess the quality, self-imposed, rigor, responsibility and social commitment, both in training and in the scientific and informative work.
- Critically analyze a given scientific problem based on historical and cultural sources.
- Critically interpret texts as historical and cultural sources.
- Knowledge and understanding that provide a basis or opportunity for originality in developing and / or applying ideas, often in a research context.
- Read, translate, parse, interpret texts critically and edit antiguoegipcios, medioegipcios and neoegipcios of different genres and on different media.
- Teaming up with special sensitivity interdisciplinarity.
- That students are able to integrate knowledge and handle complexity and formulate judgments based on information that was incomplete or limited, include reflecting on social and ethical responsibilities linked to the application of their knowledge and judgments.

Assessment

Module evaluation system

Each of the two subjects that make up the module is evaluated independently. The final mark of the module results from the crossing of the final marks of the two subjects, at the rate of 75/25%.

To pass the module it is necessary to pass the evaluation of the two subjects that compose it.

In the table, the hours of dedication to each activity are not specified because they may vary from one person to another. The approximate total hours of personal work of the student are specified in the table in the "Methodology" section.

The evaluation will consist of four types of activities:

1) Exams (see "Contents" section). Except for justified reasons, the students of the virtual modality will take the tests or exams in synchrony with the group of the face-to-face modality, in connection with Microsoft Teams and with the camera activated. When this is not possible, they will agree with the lecturers the day and time of the test or exam, which will be as close as possible to those of the original test or exam.

2) Interventions, correction of translation exercises, and presentations in class. Delivery of translation exercises for correction.

3) Three group papers of Texts and one individual paper of Literature.

4) Follow-up tutorials and student portfolio.

Regarding the mark review procedure, lecturers will inform the students about it at the time of each evaluation activity.

Regarding the make-up tests and exams, the lecturers will agree with the students the dates, which must be within the month following the original test or exam. Students who have passed a test or exam but wish to improve their mark may also take the make-up exam. In principle, the work and activities that the student performs autonomously are not subject to recovery.

This module does not incorporate single assessment.

Students will obtain the course grade "Not assessed/submitted" when he/she has not completed the evaluation of the module, i.e. if any of the compulsory assessment activities have not been completed.

In the event of a student committing any irregularity that may lead to a significant variation in the grade awarded to an assessment activity, the student will be given a zero for this activity, regardless of any disciplinary process that may take place. In the event of several irregularities in assessment activities of the same module, the student will be given a zero as the final grade for this module.
