Prerequisites

For students of the Degree in Political Science and Public Management: The student is assumed to know, at least, the concepts, theories and knowledge covered in the courses 'Political Science' and 'Administration and Public Policies'. In addition, it is recommended that the student has completed and passed the course 'Comparative Politics I'.

For students of the Degree in International Relations: The student is assumed to know, at least, the concepts, theories and knowledge covered in the course 'Political Science'. In addition, it is recommended that the student has completed and passed the course 'Public Policy Analysis'.

Students are assumed to read texts in English. They are also assumed to regularly read newspapers, blogs, and other regular sources of information.

Objectives and Contextualisation

This subject is compulsory in the 3rd year of the Degree in Political Science and Public Management and in the 2nd year Degree in International Relations. Overall, the course's main objective is that students acquire basic theoretical and empirical knowledge of the European Union and learn the capacities to use it in the analysis and interpretation of European political processes. The most specific objectives are: first, learning the historical process of European integration, the evolution and current functioning of the main political institutions and the inter-institutional relations; secondly, learning the main political dynamics and decision-making processes of the EU through the analysis of some of the most relevant recent political events at European level; third, getting used to the institutional sources of data on the European Union and learning how to use them to conduct empirical studies; finally, knowing the main theoretical approaches that currently dominate the field of European studies.

Competences

Political Science and Public Management

- Act with ethical responsibility and respect for fundamental rights and duties, diversity and democratic values.
- Arguing from different theoretical perspectives.
- Assess the social, economic and environmental impact when acting in this field of knowledge.
- Connecting the different components that shape the structure and operations of political systems and the environment where they interact.
- Demonstrating good writing skills in different contexts.
- Demonstrating knowledge about the structure and working of the European Union and its main institutions, as well as identifying the main political actors and recognising the main means of integration.
- Demonstrating the comprehension of the structure and functioning of political systems in the internal and international arena, both in the analytic area and in the elaboration of intervention proposals or public policies.
- Develop critical thought and reasoning and be able to communicate them effectively, both in your own language and second or third languages.
- Develop strategies for autonomous learning.
- Identifying sources of data and conducting bibliographic and documentary searches.
- Interpreting and applying English texts in an academic way.
- Make changes to the methods and processes of the area of knowledge to provide innovative responses to the needs and wishes of society.
- Managing the available time in order to accomplish the established objectives and fulfil the intended task.
- Realising effective oral presentations that are suited to the audience.
- Showing a good capacity for transmitting information, distinguishing key messages for their different recipients.
- Synthesizing and critically analysing information.
- Take sex- or gender-based inequalities into consideration when operating within one's own area of knowledge.
- Using the main information and documentation techniques (ICT) as an essential tool for the analysis.
- Working autonomously.
- Working by using quantitative and qualitative analysis techniques in order to apply them to research processes.
- Working in teams and networking, particularly in interdisciplinary conditions.

International Relations

- Analyse the structure and operation of international institutions and organisations (political, economic, military and security, environmental, development and emergency aid) both in the universal and regional spheres, with particular emphasis on the European Union, from either real or simulated cases.
- Identify data sources and carry out rigorous bibliographical and documentary searches.
- Learn and analyse the impacts of the globalisation process on domestic political systems and on the behaviour of the political actors and the public.
- Students must be capable of communicating information, ideas, problems and solutions to both specialised and non-specialised audiences.
- Students must develop the necessary learning skills to undertake further training with a high degree of autonomy.
- Use metatheoretical data to argue and establish plausible relation of causality and establish ways of validating or rejecting them.

Continuous evaluation

The evaluation represents approximately 5% of the total hours, equivalent to 7.5 hours.

The assessment consists of the following deliveries by the student:

- Written exam on knowledge about the subject: 50% of the final score. Passing the exam is a necessary but not sufficient condition to pass the subject
- 2 reading exams: 20% of the final score (each control weights 10% of the final score)
- Submission and presentation of coursework made in a group: 25% of the final score. Passing the coursework is a necessary but not sufficient condition to pass the subject
- Oral participation in seminars and sessions: 5% of the final score

Important considerations:

- Students who have neither taken the exam nor submitted the coursework assignment will receive a grade of NOT EVALUATED
- The exam will be made at the end of the semester, the date scheduled by the Facultad, which will be made public enough in advance
- The schedule of sessions, activities, and reading exams will be made public during the first days of the course
- Students who have not passed the final exam will have the opportunity to take a recovery examination. That is to say, they may take a second examination on the date determined by the Faculty, having completed the term of the second semester. Under no circumstances will students be able to take part in the recovery activities to raise their marks.
- None of the other evaluable activities is recoverable
- In case of detection of plagiarism in the essays delivered, the student will not pass the course. On the Virtual Campus, you can consult the Guide on How to Cite and How to Avoid Plagiarism.

Single evaluation

The single evaluation of the assignment represents approximately 5% of the total hours, equivalent to about 7.5 hours.

The single evaluation will consist of the following evidence from the students:

- Final exam: 50% of the final grade. Passing the exam is a necessary but not sufficient condition to pass the subject
- Reading control: 20% of the final mark
- Delivery of a coursework made individually: 30% of the final mark. Passing the coursework is a necessary but not sufficient condition to pass the subject

Important considerations:

- Students who have neither taken the exam nor submitted the coursework assignment will receive a grade of NOT EVALUATED
- All deliveries will be made on the same day at the end of the semester, specifically, the date set by the Faculty to take the final exam, which will be made public sufficiently in advance
- Students who have not passed the final EXAM will have the opportunity to take the recovery activity. That is, they will be able to take the exam again on the day determined by the Faculty, following the end of the second semester
- In no case will students be able to recover activities to raise their grade
- None of the other evaluable activities are recoverable
- In case of detecting plagiarism in the submitted work, the sanction will be not passing the course. On the Virtual Campus you can consult the Guide on How to Cite and How to Avoid Plagiarism
