The student acquires the theoretical knowledge of basic German grammar and reinforces this knowledge with practical exercises in class and at home in a progression tutored by the teachers:

Oral communication is practised, on the basis of theoretical grammar, through simple communication situations which progressively reach a higher degree of difficulty.

Listening comprehension is practised in class through the reading of texts appropriate to the level by the teacher and recordings.

Reading comprehension is practised in class through reading strategies on written texts of the corresponding level.

Written communication is practised in the form of essays, written dialogues, etc. which the students must produce regularly at home, as indicated by the teacher, and which the teacher will correct.

Annotation: Within the schedule set by the centre or degree programme, 15 minutes of one class will be reserved for students to evaluate their lecturers and their courses or modules through questionnaires.
