Objectives and Contextualisation

In addition to the knowledge of the theoretical body of archiving and document management, it is necessary to gain first hand experience in archive institutions in order to become acquainted with the practical reality of the profession, carrying out support tasks to the technicians of the companies / archive institutions.

The internship, with a minimum duration of 150 hours, can be done in various public and private institutions, allowing the implementation of theoretical knowledge from real cases both in the field of public administration and private companies.

Furthermore, the module aims to provide students with specific training, that allows them to know the job market, opportunities for professional incorporation and research in archiving and records management.

The objectives are:

- Developing the practical application of the methodology and tools of archiving and document management.
- Understanding the operation and the organizational and operational characteristics of public administrations and companies.
- Understanding the labour market.
- Understanding the collectives of professionals in archiving and document management.
- Understanding the resources for job applications.

- Understanding the resources for the development of research projects in archiving and document management.
