Objectives and Contextualisation

The aim of this module is to address the theoretical frameworks and methodologies through which research and creation can be carried out within the framework of dramaturgy. We will reflect on the concept of dramaturgy and its various meanings.

The attributions and competencies of the playwright's work will be studied.

A dramatic writing seminar will be held.

Learning Outcomes

1. CA05 (Competence) Demonstrate skills related to working in a team: commitment to the team, regular cooperation, and the ability to encourage problem solving.
2. CA13 (Competence) Clearly distinguish the specificity of ?professions?, activities, categories, techniques and methodologies related to dramaturgy.

3. KA22 (Knowledge) Identify the terms used in the debate on the contemporary use of the term dramaturgy in the various categories and processes related to this discipline.
4. KA23 (Knowledge) Recognise and define the main techniques to undertake the various activities associated with dramaturgy: text analysis, programming, adaptation and writing.
5. KA28 (Knowledge) Illustrate the main contemporary theoretical paradigms in relation to dramaturgy.
6. SA19 (Skill) Apply methods for analysis and composition that are typical of dramaturgy, while carefully considering the already established trends and contributions of this discipline.
7. SA20 (Skill) Interpret all the learned processes by using clear, established or agreed and homogeneous terminology.
