Libraries Catalog

The screenshot displays the UAB Libraries Catalog search interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with tabs for 'Keyword', 'Title', 'Author', 'Subject', and 'Advanced Search'. Below this, a search box prompts the user to 'Type the keyword(s) in the box below.' To the right, there are 'Other search' options: Series, Genre, ISBN/ISSN, Call Num, and Course b. The main search area contains a 'Search in:' section with buttons for 'UAB' and 'CCUC', and a 'Limits' section. A 'Search tips' section provides instructions on how to use wildcards, quotation marks, and the 'or' operator. Below the search tips, there are dropdown menus for 'Library' (with options: ANY, Science and Technology Library, Social Sciences Library, Social Sciences Library-EDC), 'Material type' (with options: ANY, Book, Book-e, Thesis, PFC, TFC), and 'Language' (with options: ANY, German, Arabic, Spanish). There are also input fields for 'Year: After' and 'and before', and a 'Search and Sort' dropdown set to 'sorted by relevance'. A checkbox for 'Limit search to titles with available items' is present. The bottom of the page features another 'Search tips' section, identical to the one above.

100.000 items in DDD

100.000 registres al Dipòsit Digital de Documents

The UAB institutional repository, DDD, has reached today the number of 100,000 records. DDD gathers the UAB digital output, scientific as well as institutional and academic. It is also the digital window shop for a part of the Libraries cultural heritage. The repository has experienced a constant growth from its launching in 2006, with only 3,000 records. In these last 7 years it has become a key tool for the dissemination of the UAB research and activity. The aim of the repository for a near future is to increase the automatic collection of material such as student guides and research works, and make easy the active involvement of users, by developing self-archiving forms that allow academic and research staff to archive their own works without external aid.

Self-archiving will be a tool to support the Open Access institutional policy of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona approved in April 2012. This policy reflects the commitment of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona towards the international movement in favour of the free dissemination of scientific knowledge.

The 100,000 are an important milestone for the promotion of open access to scientific publications and the dissemination of heritage collections in Catalonia.
