

Introduction To Reproduction

*I like it! I like it!
Cry another Adam,
On his introduction
To the art of reproduction
Victim of the spells
Of a cunning serpent
Lying in her garden.*

*A modern garden far removed
From the ancient Eden,
Yet it bears the same old fruit
As the gardens of Eden:
Tempting and compelling,
But not forbidden.*

*Here lock this young lad
Betwixt the serpent's jaw
And as it riggles and twiggles
The young Adam cry no more
But the old serpent
Was giving the fruit,
Forbidden to eat in
The Garden of Eden.*

*Ate this young Adam did,
Like his forefather
From the dish of Eve,
For sweet are the apples
Of their seductive dishes,
That no Adam having tasted
Never, never refuses.*

-- Arnold J. Boyce

New York, New York