HOLIDAY DISCLOSURE

Foss doesn't have a telephone never had a doorbell hooked up and his front door won't open these days which doesn't appear to bother him although he complains a lot about being a lonely soul with no visitors or close relatives.

Kyle and I walked in on him through the back door two weeks before Christmas he was sitting at his kitchen table writing a letter in a card of the brightest red with silver bells and glitter.

We kidded him about a girl friend finally smoked out he was writing to his parents back in Bowie, Texas both of them in good shape for being eighty-five.

Kyle was a little miffed as we drove home said that phony Foss led everyone to believe he was an orphan without a living relative in the world why does he tell that stuff?

FAMILY TRADITIONS

I didn't believe it when they said Olivia Way kept a table set with her mother's china white with a plain gold band a wedding present from June 1901 but I had to eat my own doubts when Mamie took me there last year no one told me there would be fresh flowers in a white pitcher and silver napkin rings

DOUBTING JOHN MAYFIS

He wanted homemade bread the worst way and bought flour and quick-rising yeast for Nancy who barely could make toast
