

PENSIVE

Judson took a photo of me yesterday and afterwards said, "You looked rather somber in that one"
and i said, "Pensive, that's us poets, we're nothing
if not pensive, that's one of the main requirements"

actually,
like most times when somebody is taking my picture
i don't know what to do so i just stare at the floor.

— Mark Weber

Albuquerque NM

INTERVIEW (1983)

what would you do if you had 5 minutes to live? he asked.

nothing.

really?

yes, nothing.

all right, suppose you had 2
weeks?

nothing.

come on, don't give me that, be
serious!

I think I
am.

all right, suppose you had 2
months?

either hold up a bank or take
up
water-skiing.

you're not being realistic
about this whole
thing.

oh yes, you're giving me
longer and longer to
live ...
what would you do
if you had 2 months to
live?

well, he answered, I'd
drink and fuck,
plenty.

o.k., put me down for
the same.

now you're talking!
he said.

for a man with 2 months to
live
he looked pretty
satisfied.

SNAPSHOT (1985)

flailing away at infinity
the tiny winged night bug
on its back
under the desk lamp
kicks and struggles with
thread legs
under the heat of the light
as in the corner of the room
my fat yellow cat
lifts his left leg
high
and licks his precious
parts
as in the harbor now
a boat suddenly loosens
a horn sound

the cat stiffens, stops
licking

the bug becomes
motionless

then,
both at once,